

Grandpa's Ranch by Alli P.

Zoey was a 14 year old girl that lived in a small apartment with her bratty little sister Chloe and their mom. It was summer for them. School was over, so they decided to go to their grandpa's ranch. It took a long time to get there. Finally, they arrived at his ranch and had to walk for a while. When they got there, they saw their grandpa waiting at the door. They said hello and then he showed them to their rooms to unpack. When they were done unpacking, Zoey went outside to relax. Her mom warned her to not ride the horses. She saw a horse running loose. She ran over to help get the horse. It was black with a black mane. He was kicking his hooves in the air. She got a rope and lassoed him to the stables with the other horses. The next day Zoey met two girls from the ranch. Their names were Mia and Stephanie. There were about the same age as Zoey. She made friends with them and they showed her to the stables. They said to choose Ravin. When Zoey got on Ravin, she kept on falling over, over, over, over Ravin jumped up and ran away. Her leg was broken. Weeks passed and Zoey's leg was healed. She went to the stables and Ravin was not there. She climbed on another horse and went in the woods. Hours passed and she could not find him. She finally sees him and his hoof was caught in a big rock. She wraps her scarf around his leg. Soon her friends notice she was gone so they rode on their horses and found her. When they got back, they took Ravin to the vet. It took a week for it to heal. Zoey's mom tells her it is time to go back home. When they had to go back, they had to say goodbye to Ravin. Zoey felt a bond with him. As they were leaving, Ravin broke out of his stable and ran toward Zoey. Zoey's mother asked her if she wanted to stay with her grandpa and Zoey smiled and said yet.

The End.