

Backed Up

One day a kid named Angel went to school on the last day of the school year. "Nice!!" "The last day of school!, says Angel. Angel didn't know that his grades were terrible and he would be held back. Summer went by fast and the next school year, Angel was ecstatic but when he got on the bus, the bus took him to the same school he went to last year. Angel was weirded out, he went up to the bus driver and put a hand on the bus driver's shoulder. "Hey," Angel said. The bus driver turned around and said, "What?". "Why are we stopping at my old school?" Angel asked confused. "You were on the list to go back here, so here's your stop." said the Bus Driver. "Why?" asked Angel. "Your grades were super low and you failed all your classes." said the Bus Driver politely. "OK then." says Angel. He walks in the school with an excited face. "Finally, I have a new chance at school to get awesome grades." says Angel. A whole year of learning and playing. He got A's and B's and probably a C. He came to the bus driver and said "Hey!" The bus driver turned around and said, "What?" Angel showed him his report card. "Great, I knew I could count on you," said the bus driver. Angel got his degree soon after school ended and knew that if you mess up once you can try again sooner or later.
