

The Lego Story

John C.

Once upon a time, there was a Lego set who lived at the sent store. Who more than anything wants to be built, yet he was cheap. Years past as he watched little boys and girls walk by. One day he went on clearance. The store went out of business, that same cheap Lego set got left behind. When the manager of Gucci came to buy the place, he saw the cheap Lego set and gave it to his son. It turned out to be the owner. It took the kid one hour to build it. Every day after that, happiest toy ever in the whole world. But, the day came he turned 16, he said this is a cheap thing. He threw it away because he got an iPhone. All he did was text, facetime and snapchat. The cheap Lego went to the dump, he met other trashy toys. He said, "What's y'all's background stories?" He told them all his story. A week later, Hobo came and got him. He broke the cheap Lego and got threw into the sea. A fisher got the Legos head and ate it and choked to death. The Lego rotted and was never seen again.