

Sulk Yesterday, Hope Today, Love Tomorrow

By Patience M.

There was once a little girl named Eloise. She lived by the beach in a pretty, teal house. She had a beautiful garden with flowers just waiting for her. The path led to her house with her Mom waiting. "Get ready for school honey, you're going to be late." she said. When she went to school she found out she was ahead of her classmates. But her classmates all had different talents. They also picked on her. When she asked her teacher Ms. Sunny to go to the Library Eloise thought her heart skipped a beat. But her heart sank when Ms. Sunny said, "No. Eloise you are too ahead. You have to help you're classmates first." Eloise soon got frustrated. She did not want to help them. Two months later she had found two friends. Yes they got in fights but they got over it. One day her friends Violet & Lavender found out what she had to do. They did encourage her and guess what! She helped her other classmates! Her friends were very proud. She also had many friends after that. Then everyone was happy, especially Eloise. I should know because I am the one they call Eloise and I want you to know sometimes you can use a little encouragement.