The Judge Of Laws

There was a boy named Steven who was playing basketball. Then he stopped to take a little break. And then these bad people came to him and started to make fun of him because he would miss. When he started to walk home he was thinking about what he can do to not get pushed around like he was today. He got home and fell asleep. And after that he woke up and he was in the jungle and he made his own house. He then hiked and saw all kinds of animals. He likes to climb trees and likes to see monkeys and tigers. He had to be careful to not step on an ant. After that he was at a mine and he saw all kinds of rocks and diamonds. After that he was in the time of dinosaurs and he was able to calm them with a special touch. After that he saw the giraffe, it was the one who had died because the kid fell right in the enclosure.

He found a friend named Sebastian. They became friends with him and started writing books. Their first book was called the Jaguar who was scared of spiders. It was about a Jaguar who did not like spiders every day. When he woke up. When he went to school he got pushed around again because he missed again. So he went home and talked to his parents and he went to school and did the time they said and it worked. And he was never pushed around again. He was so joyful until his mom was going to the store and there was a big boom! His mom was in the store and there was a bombing and his mom was at the store the bomb was set for. And then his mom was hit badly and when she died and they had a really big funeral for her. After that life was hard after his mom died. He had to live with his grandparents after a couple days he went to court so he would be able to live with them and when the judge said "your father and mother" and he was a fisherman's son he had moved to Washington D.C. He started to learn about law and when he went to college he studied how to be a judge and when he turned 31 years old. He ran to be judge of the supreme court and when it was the election he got elected and started helping making laws for the United States and they were to be followed. The next day a man was sentenced for second degree murder. And was sentenced for eighteen years in prison. He had two beautiful children. The kids were scared of their dad because he had killed a person that was at a party they were invited to. After that Steven went home and shot hoops in the hoop he shot as a kid where he was bullied. Steven loved to read he loved to read books that were about lawyers and detectives. He loved his job because he was able to work with the president and author judges. He liked his job so much he got record breaking votes on his second election again people wanted him to make more laws. He died a month later he died. The people were sad because he died so they went to the supreme court and all had held candles. Then there was eighteen years and Jayson was out of jail and then there was another mass shooting in Las Vegas. It was in the 32 floor in a hotel building the guys suitcase was full of rifles and ammo. Police could not get to the 32 floor in time. There was more than 262 people who died and more than 300 injured. The guy was put to jail for 62 years in jail. There is still justice in the world he said.
