

Magical Journey

Hi my name is Taylor and I am 12 years old and one day I was going to bed when I heard something so I went down stairs. My mother and father were asleep in their room. So I went into the kitchen and looked around then something shiny caught my eye. So I went closer and closer to it. Then I picked it up and it was a tiny little bottle with a shiny silver ribbon wrapped around it and inside there was a tiny note. I read it, it said "Say TINY AS EVER 3 times out loud". Then I heard footsteps so I took the bottle with the little paper back upstairs. As I was quietly going back to my room I was thinking about the note I read. But it didn't make sense to me. I sat in the middle of my bed still thinking. I was wondering if I should say it or not. Then I decided. I am going to do it and take a chance. So I said TINY AS EVER 3 times. All of a sudden it felt like there was an earthquake happening but something wasn't right. Then I realized that nothing was moving. I thought I was going crazy. Then everything was growing bigger except for me. I was wondering what was happening? Why is everything bigger than me? Or did I just shrink! Oh no! I just shrunk! I was trying to calm myself down when I heard big giant booms that went like booooo booooo booooo. Then I saw my mom, she was sleep walking and almost squished me like a bug not to mention I am the size of a flea! I need my mom to help me. But how? Oh I said, I have an idea. I ran and jump off the end of the bed trying to land on my feet. But I ended up landing on my back flat to the floor. Ouch I say that really hurt. I run over to my mother's foot and jump on it while shouting MOM! MOM! She can't hear me then she walks out of my room. I shout WAIT come back! Then I have another idea I go all-the-way to my desk and climb up the side of the table and try writing on a piece of paper but the pencil is too heavy and I fall down. It's hopeless! Then I doze off to sleep thinking it was a dream. When I woke up I found out it wasn't a dream. Then I saw a little bottle but this time it was the size of me. And this time the ribbon was shiny blue. When I opened it the note said 'Say BIG BIG but not too BIG'. So I said it out loud "BIG BIG but not too BIG". Then I grew the size I was before I shrunk. Then I shouted "Yay" and my mom said "Are you OK?". "Yes I say, I am just glad today is today."
