

Dedicated to our beloved author, Crystal Allen, who inspired us!

Once there was a girl named Alyssa. The one thing in the world she wanted most was to win the talent show, but there was a big problem. There were three people in her class that thought they would win, but that did not stop her from believing.

The next day was the tryouts for the talent show. Alyssa was so excited that she wanted to cry, but Brittany Bishop, Becky Snyder, and Kayla Millorion were waiting to destroy Alyssa with dancing. Alyssa was singing and her voice was like an angel. She watched Brittany, Becky, and Kayla, they were good, but not good enough against Alyssa.

The day after Alyssa looked at the school board. She had made it! Brittany, Becky, and Kayla had also made it. Alyssa got very nervous, what if she lost to the other girls? However, Alyssa was determined, and nothing would stop her from winning.

While Alyssa was looking at the names on the list, the other girls were walking toward her. She ran and hid by her locker while they checked out the school board.

Alyssa carefully stepped out from behind her locker. Brittany turned around and said, "Hmm, were you stalking us? What are you doing over there?"

"Hmm, no I wasn't stalking you," returned Alyssa.

Brittany shook her head. Alyssa seemed worried. "Look at her! She seems so guilty, I'm going to call the police," said Brittany.

"Why would you call the police on me? I didn't commit a crime and my dad is the mayor, so he can send you to jail! I'm not going to jail."

"Fine, we will just leave you alone. Wish you bad luck in the show!" responded Brittany.

It was the day of the talent show. Alyssa couldn't even breathe. She saw the list, she was going second, right after the other group of girls. She watched them perform and they were good. It was time, Alyssa walked onto the stage. She sang her heart out.

"In first place, we have Alyssa Beast, in second place we have Brittany, Kayla, and Becky!" announced the teacher.
