Taylor Learns a Lesson

Chapter 1

Taylor is really nice at school but really mean at home. She was hoping her parents would let her get a Rubik's cube but they said she needed to behave better at home first. Taylor went to school without a Rubik's cube and her friends did not want to hang out with her because she doesn't have a Rubik's cube. Taylor came home with bad news that day, so she told her mom and dad and they knew how she was feeling. So her mom said, "Let's go somewhere." Taylor thought her mom was going to buy her a Rubik's cube but she was taking her out to a restaurant. She was kind of feeling better and she tried to be nicer at home. The next eight weeks she saved her money and had $20 by watering plants and taking her dog on a walk and chores. So she bought a Rubik's cube and she was happy. The next day she went to school and she brought her Rubik's cube and her friends hung out with her and she was glad. When she got home from school that day she told her parents the good news.

Chapter 2

Taylor is not being bullied anymore because she has a Rubik's cube. She feels bad for people that get bullied. Soon four weeks passed and her friends are riding their bikes a lot but she broke her leg and her friends still rode their bikes and did not do what she wanted to do. One day at lunch she saw a new girl so she wheeled her chair over and said, "Hi my name is Taylor. What is your name?" she asked. The new girl said "Caroline." Taylor said, "Do you want to be my friend?" Caroline said yes. So they talked during lunch and got each others phone numbers.

Then on Saturday they both went to the park and saw each other and their moms met each other. A few weeks went past and they were still friends and it was Saturday and they had a play date.

Chapter 3

Soon Taylor did not have a wheel chair but she still hung out with Caroline. A few weeks later Caroline moved and Taylor was hanging out with her old friends and Taylor, Emily, Emma, and Mary were bullying other kids. They got in trouble and they all had to go to the principal's office. Then her mom talked to her how it is not nice to bully other kids. Taylor understood and she felt bad for what she did. A few weeks later Taylor's mom adopted a little boy and she always treat him really nice because she learned her lesson about treating people right. Soon it was her birthday and she was so excited. She invited Kendra, one of the girl who got bullied, and they went to a movie and after that they got ice cream. Kendra was so happy to be invited and Taylor learned to never bully again.
