Patrick's Regret

On the special day Patrick went to buy a lottery ticket. As soon as he got it he went straight home as quick as a cheetah. He jumped on his couch sat and waited for the special announcement. They announced the numbers. 9, 4, 1, 6, and 0. They all matched. Patrick jumped in the air with excitement! He sold everything. Clothes, house, electronics. Everything you can imagine. He started shopping online. Happy of what he was getting but he didn't know he was going to have to pay millions of dollars. The news people owed a huge apology. They said we are soooo sorry. We messed up on one of the numbers. Sorry for the winner. Patrick realized he was the winner. He had lost everything. The things he had were going away one by one because he had sold them. Soon he became homeless. Like usual Patrick was now living in the streets. Patrick was crying for help. People would stare at him and whisper in their ears silently. He started to help people with things even though some people would still reject him. Whatever it was big or small things he still helped. Little by little he began to earn money. Patrick was making a difference into people's lives. He started to feel better but not completely. After months of helping people he earned enough money to buy everything he had lost. He still made a HUGE mistake but as long as he saw other people happy he was happy too. Slowly he began to get his things back that he had before but had sold. After a long day of shopping for his new things he walked home the new home he had bought. He didn't know what was coming. A big surprise was coming. He just had walked in and placed his things inside the new living room. The living room was the only place in his house that had the lights on. Patrick walked in the kitchen he saw pizza, cups, and sodas sitting on the counter. He turned on the lights. In the count of three. 1, 2, 3, SURPRISE! All the people said thank you, so did Patrick. He learned a big lesson in his life. Never assume things until you know things. That was one of his biggest regrets in life. Patrick made sure he never repeated the same mistake EVER again! Patrick was a person that was remembered in the little town.
