

My Own Secret World

by Alyssa F.

Once there was a girl called Elizabeth. She was 10 years old and her parents were divorced. She now lived with only her mom and they moved. They were from Chicago but her mom felt like they should start somewhere new with a fresh start. "Ok dear we are here, do you like the house?" "Yes it's beautiful mom I love it." Then she went upstairs and took her boxes one by one to her bedroom. The first thing she unpacked was her snowglobe collection. "I wished we didn't have to move so far away from dad" the girl said to herself. There was a shelf in the room where she put all her snowglobes. "There, that's perfect time to move on to the next box." As she unpacked her clothes and other of her belongings, she thought she heard something whispering. She then asked her mom "Hey mom did you call me or something?" "No sweetie I did not call you" "Oh ok thanks mom." After that she went back to unpacking when she heard it again and again and again. "Ok I'm going to find out where this whispering is coming from" said the girl. The girl looked and she looked but still could not find anything even if she did look all over the house. "Where is that noise coming from, It's driving me crazy!"

The time came when summer ended and Elizabeth had to go to a new school. When Elizabeth walked into the school, her stomach was tossing and turning. "You got this Elisabeth, you got this" she said over and over inside her head. She finally arrived to her homeroom class. She turned the doorknob slowly, then opened the door. "Hello there, I'm Ms. Honey, your homeroom teacher. You will meet your other two teachers today as well." The teacher then asked for her name. Then she went to go find an open seat. When she did find one, she sat down and whispered hi to the girl sitting next to her.

Finally, the day was over and she walked home from school. When all of a sudden, she heard someone whisper her name. She turned around, but nobody was there. It was quiet and all you could really hear were cars passing by. She kept on walking, but didn't hear anything. A few days passed, then weeks, then months. One day she heard some bushes moving near her house. Elizabeth turned around and saw the bushes moving, then heard whispering. She tiptoed to the bushes, then opened them up and was surprised to see two little fairies. They gasped and they both said to each other "she found us!" Amazed of what she had discovered, Elizabeth said, "Y...Y...Y...you're fairies!" "Yep, we are fairies and you found us." Elizabeth said "wait, what happens if I find you? Will you guys disappear or something?" "Nope," said the fairies, "but as a reward for finding us, we have to show you a magical place with all sorts of mythical creatures." "Oh my gosh! I can't wait to tell my mom and all my friends about the place," she replied. "No! You can never tell anybody about this place or else there could be serious consequences for us." "Ok, I will not tell anybody, promise." So then they went to the secret place, but Elizabeth had a hard time finding it since it was covered with green leaves and plants. When they finally went inside, the girl found the most prettiest place she had ever been in. "What is this place?" "This is our little fairytale world" replied the fairies. "Has any human been in here besides me?" asked Elizabeth. "Only a few, but not very many" replied the fairies. "Can I visit this place whenever I want?" "Of course" said the two fairies. "You can come whenever you want." Now Elizabeth goes to the place everyday. Even if she had a hard time moving away, this secret place she discovered helped her in many ways. This was her own secret world.