A Caring Girl

By Jada Lyn R.

There was a girl named Lily. She was coming home from school when she saw a boy that was homeless. She went home and told her mom if she can go to the store and get a blanket and some clothes for the boy. When they left, she gave the blanket and clothes to him and she said, "bless you, no matter what you do." He started crying. She was happy that he was happy with what he got, but the next day he was gone. Lily was confused. She went home and told her mom and her mom was confused also.

The End.
