

The somebody

By Sydney B.

There was once a girl i am not going to mention her name because she was a nobody and no one liked her because she wrote the best stories in the universe. people thought she was a nerd. She was always a sickly child having asthma and eating meds off the floor when she was a baby but also being artsy and acing every test. everyone laughed at her and never took her seriously. one day she was walking with her friend named Amy Foster when amy asked, why do people call you a nobody? are they jealous of me and you? Precisely she said. hey stop! Amy said look it's a poster for the story contest! you should enter! ok mabe but there is a big chance i won't win. So will you enter? i guess so. the next day she worked on her story all night then finally turned it in the next day. ha ha she is a nerd! rylene yelled! you talk about her that way again you will get my fist amy yelled! no amy she yelled! scram amy yelled! and they all ran away. how did you... before you say anything i have a question what is your name? Not that it is any of your business but it's... kartiki what? Yes i know it's an awful name right? no it's cool! what? ya! we will now announce the storybook winners! said the intercoms. quickly i crossed my fingers. 1st place gilly 2th place kartiki 3d place... you won! yes amy yes i won! and that was the story of the somebody! they were always loved and they all lived happily ever after!

The End