

Mystery on Halloween night

By Felix H.

It is Halloween night, everybody is dressed up. All the houses are decorated on Pinecone Street. except Mr. Nobody's. We were walking up and down Pinecone Street to achieve our goal of getting a hundred tons of candies. I'm Billy. I have two friends named Jeff and Timmy. This Halloween, I am dressed up as a robot. Jeff is a superhero and Timmy is a zombie. We already have thirty-seven tons of candies so we need to move on.

We kept on walking till we get to an old looking house. Timmy said: "That is where Mr. Nobody lives. He has been missing for two days." I said whatever and I walked up to the door. When I rang the doorbell, I heard no "ding dong". I stood there for a second then... SLAM! The door fell down. "That almost killed me", I said. Jeff took his flash light and we all marched in.

"Crick, crack" we walked in a mysterious hall. Then, there was an opening, but right at that moment, Jeff s flash light ran out of batteries. We decided to walk in anyways ."This room is very dark. I can't see a thing" Timmy says. Then, I see a light switch. "Hey, there's a light" I said. "Turn it on!" they both said. "Flick!" I tumed on the light and 'AAAHI-U-IAAHH! We ran out the room. For your information, there is snakes and mice all over the floor. Then, we heard giggling. "It's a ghost!" I said. I wanted to look in but then, Jeff stopped me and says: "Where's Timmy?" We both look in and there he was, holding a snake in his hand. "It's a plastic toy, you scared cats." We all started to laugh but something interrupted us. It was a faddy screechy voice trying to holler help. It was coming from the kitchen. We all started walking towards the kitchen.

When we were in the kitchen, we heard the voice again but now, it was coming from the pantry. When we were literally face to face with the pantry, we heard it again. But, when we looked at the door, it was locked. I quickly unlocked the door and opened it. "I can't believe it, it's you, Mr. Nobody!" I said. He was sitting on the pantry floor looking so relieved with in his hand, a huge bowl of candies. "Thank you for freeing me" Mr. Nobody said. "How did you get in here?" Jeff said. "Well, I can explain everything. What happened was, I was working in my office to decorate the house and suddenly, I got a bit hungry. I got out of my chair and didn't see what was below. I tripped and made tons of little plastic snakes and rats fall, all over the floor. Then, I got back up and kept on going. I went in the pantry to eat some candies until the door slammed shut and it locked. So, all I could do was to call for help and hope somebody would come and save me." explained Mr. Nobody,

After that, he helped us out. We thanked him and we helped him decorate his house for Halloween. We saw our parents outside looking for us. They all hugged us, thanked Mr. Nobody and made us go home.

That night, when I was in my bedroom, I looked out my window and Mr. Nobody' s house was the coolest looking house on Pinecone Street.