

The factory book 1

by Hudson J.

Mo and Sally lost a bet. They now had to spend a week in an old abandoned factory. "I wonder why it was abandoned?" asked Sally. "I remember they made robots for entertainment" Mo slid open the heavy door, stepped in, and closed it behind him. They walked around. It was dark but they brought flashlights. They walked the corner to find an old robotic crow. It had lost an eye and half a wing. "wow" exclaimed Mo. "an old bot" suddenly the eye flickered yellow then turned red. It gave a twitch and lunged at Sally. With a scream Sally fell down. Mo grabbed the crow's full wing and with a tug and a "Crack!" his second wing broke in two. The crow tried to hit Mo but with half a wing but it didn't even come close. Mo and Sally then darted through a hole at the bottom of the wall. Then, they ran into the nearby forest knowing the crow was still after them.

To be continued...

...in book 2...