

Haylie and the Unicorn

By Jolene J.

Once upon a time there was a princess named Haylie, she is kind, nice, helpful, and pretty. Her mother (the queen) is pretty, kind, nice, and is very helpful to Haylie's dad (the king). He wants respect, is demanding, and needs help ruling his kingdom. One day Haylie got bored and wanted to go on a stroll in the park. She went. She went farther in the park than she normally goes. She found a gray shower curtain on a tree and she wondered what was behind it. So she went around the tree, it was just a normal grassy field. So then she decided to go back home. She went back through the curtain. Woosh. Suddenly she was in a whole new world. She began running around and exploring. She soon got lost. Then she saw a horse. But that's what she thought it was, instead it was a unicorn. The unicorn's name was Rose, she is white, sassy, and willing to do anything. Rose said "I shall grant you one wish." "Okay, I wish for you to become my best friend," said Haylie. The, Rose said "I wish I could grant that wish, but I don't have time to be your friend, want anything else?" Haylie replied "No." the Rose said "Okay." So Rose granted Haylie's wish. Haylie rode on Rose's back all the way home. Haylie introduced Rose to her parents at dinner. Her mother had a love for art. She took Rose to the back room to paint a portrait of her. Haylie found them and complained "Mom why are you painting my unicorn?" "Because I haven't painted in a while and I love to," replied her mom. The next day was Haylie's birthday, she was turning nine years old, she invited hundreds of people to her party. She rode Rose into her party, everyone made an aisle for Rose to walk down. They bowed down to Haylie, by every step Rose took. Rose was now delighted that the strange little girl that was lost was a princess because that night Haylie told her "I declare that you Rose the Unicorn is now my sister because of the good deeds you have done." Rose was as excited as a monkey with a banana. "Now I shall show you your new room," said Haylie. She led Rose up to the seventh floor, and seventh room to the right. Haylie had been saving this room for a brother or sister if she got one, but unfortunately, she was an only child. This room had a beautiful, aquamarine, four poster bed. Rose sighed because it was so lovely. Haylie showed Rose her room (which was right across the hall) it was extremely alike except there was an aquamarine dresser with two cabinet doors that held her dresses, two drawers that held her shorts and shirts, there also was a beautiful aquamarine vanity. Haylie and Rose then went down to dinner. There Rose told hilarious jokes, who knew she was so comical. That night they went to bed. Rose came into Haylie's bed, they played tic-tac-toe several times before Rose went to her bed. That morning Haylie had painting lessons from her mom, she put on a shirt and shorts because she didn't want to get one of her dresses dirty. She took Rose with her so she and her mom could paint a portrait of her. After they finished their paintings, Hailey's dad came to see them. He said in a low voice, "This is very nice girls." Haylie and Rose explored the castle all day. Rose lived with Haylie for the rest of their lives, and they lived happily ever after.