A GIRL AND A MOON

There was a girl named Jamie who did not have many friends. She sat alone at lunch everyday and played by herself at recess. She was also bullied by some of her classmates. One night she Jamie was laying in bed and just stared at the moon, that very night, the moon became her only friend. Every night Jamie would sit on her front porch and tell the moon about her day. Jamie knew the moon wouldn't answer but she still loved the fact that she actually had something to talk to. This became a part of her nightly routine.

The next day, somebody found out that Jamie talks to the moon and started to make fun of her. When a girl named Emma saw this happening, she stood up for Jamie. When Jamie got home she was so excited that she told the moon everything that happened that day. The next day at school Emma and Jamie started talking, and soon they became friends. Jamie didn't talk to the moon as much as she used to ever since Emma became her friend. What she didn't know is that her life would change, this is when she started talking to the moon more. One way her life began to change is that more people wanted to become her friend. This was hard for Jamie because she was not used to having so many people want to be her friend. She declined all friend requests because, there's only one main friend she would have - the man in the moon.
