

The Lonely Girl

A story by Kaitlyn C. and Jayla B.

There once lived a girl named Carmen. She was a lonely little girl. She had no family whatsoever and no friends. Carmen set off to live her own life because her family died in a fire, or so she thought. As she walked along the sidewalk, she saw an old man wearing a black raincoat with a crow on his shoulder, and it wasn't even raining! The man started walking towards her, and she didn't know what to do, so she started running. The old man started chasing after her, and after a while the old man caught up to her and grabbed her by the arm. The old man said, "Carmen is that really you? I've been looking for you for years." "Who are you? I don't even know you?" She said in fear. The old man replied, "Carmen I'm your grandfather, and I know where your parents are." Carmen pleaded, "where are they please tell me!" Ok, ok I'll tell you there in the Bermuda Triangle” he said. “WHAT?!?! No you’re lying.” she replied, “They are, but if you don’t believe me, then you just won’t see your parents ever again” He responded “fine” she said. “Then we can go on this amazing journey.” he replied. “Ok , then let’s go,” she responded. As they set off to this amazing journey, they became really thirsty that they needed water. “Grandpa, I’m really thirsty,” Carmen said in exhaustion. “I know, so that’s why I brought water,” he replied. Then he gave her some water, and she wasn’t thirsty any more. To be continued ...
