

A True Fighter

Hope Stewart didn't know what to do. Her parents wouldn't let her do what she wanted! If only I can do boxing-even if it's only for a day! Mom and dad says that girls shouldn't fight, but I don't believe them.! Instead, they say that I should be a pianist, so that what I end up doing.

After going on stage, a kid ,whose name is Mark,came up to me and said, " I saw you at school one time. Anyways,you were awesome up there! Though, I did see you frown." I recognized him because he did boxing for the talent show at the Fall Fest. I tried to copy his moves,but it was so hard!I said, " I did it because I had to, so its not like I'm in a good mood. Anyways, you're a boxer right?" When he said yes he also said, "Do you want to come to my house to try it? I remember seeing you across the block. Plus, you seem to be good at math." I snatched up that opportunity right away and plan to ask our parents. I told my mom, " Me and Mark are going to so some school work together." She approved right away and so I went to his house on Saturday.

When I arrived, Mark's parents welcomed me like a was their daughter. I taught him math first, then we started boxing after lunch. We started with the basics and went on up. Soon, I looked as if I was a professional boxer.

One month passed and I finally got the nerve to show my parents what I've been doing. Mark and I had already plan what I'll be showing them. I went up to them said said,"Mom,Dad,I'd like to show you what I've been working on. As I finished,my parents stared at me, as I waited for them to start yelling at me. My dad interrupted the silence and said,"Who taught you this?" I told him about how I was helping Mark with math and how he trained me to become a boxer. He then responded, "Tell him that I'm thankful for training my daughter and that I'd like to meet him."

Now I go to a boxing school, which Mark's mom recommended, and I only have to go to piano classes for once a week. I super grateful that Mark taught me his skills and techniques. You never know what will happen, but you should always believe in your dreams.
