

(Not a true story)

Why Do Tears Go Away

Everyone has those couple of questions. Mine is why do tears go away but pain doesn't? You can cry all you want and it will go away, but why were you crying? Probably because of pain. It's hard for pain to go away, sometimes it's like needles going into your heart and you can't get them out. Crying is just trying to get the pain out of you. If you think about it crying and pain are two totally different things. One feels good (crying) and the other one hurts so badly (pain).

It hurts when people bully you. That's when the pain starts in less than ten seconds. Then the tears come so you can try get the pain out before it hurts you. The pain just wants to go in your heart and doesn't want to come out.

The worst pain is when you smile just so you can keep the tears in.....

Pain usually starts from bullies or losing a loved one that you thought you will always have.

The rain falls because the clouds can no longer handle the weight, and tears fall because the heart can no longer handle the pain..

fanasaludinquotes

Thank You for reading,
Mikayla S.