

Once there was a boy named Cole. He was a very nice and interesting boy. One day he was alone at home and very bored. Cole wanted some company, maybe a pet? Yes, he thought, I do want a pet.

A few years later, Cole was now 10 years old. He still had a wanting for a pet. On May 30th, 2014, his mom came in asking would you like to go to the pet store? Cole was very excited, he kept asking himself is this a dream? Though it was true, he did go to the pet store. Later, (1 hour) he came home with a very cute bunny. Cole called him Maggie.

5 days later it was chaos in Cole's house! Maggie was messing up everyone's schedule! Cole knew he had to do something about it. Cole now chased his pet, Maggie, all over the house! Eventually, Cole caught Maggie and his mom told him, you need to find someone who can train that bunny. Cole searched and searched for Internet training videos on how to train a bunny. Until he found one, Maggie was still causing chaos! Later, he found something that looked promising. Max's pet trainers was now in front of his face. Except for one problem, it costs $70.99! He asked for money from his mom and he got it. He shouted out Yes! But there was a catch. He had to do extra chores for the money. So he worked and worked until he achieved the money. Now, he bought the pet training, and Maggie was trained. They all lived happily ever after.
