The knight tryed to get past the lazars, but he touched one and responed back at the start of lazars. Again, and again...he kept touching the lazars and he kept responing. And finally...he made it past the lazars but the dragon got back from hunting. But the dragon was not happy but full, so the dragon culd not eat any more and the knight was so thankful. So the knight hurried and grabed the egg and ran to the exit and jumped out the exit and good thing the knight was wearing armer and he was fine but the egg was not it was cracked open and the daby dragon was a son of the knight.

But the dragon was hungry once again. And the knight looked out the window and said "look out for the dragon!" and the dragon went from village to village, and kept knocking down everybody, but the castle was empty because the knight saw that the dragon was coming so they got everything and packed up, and said goodbye to everything and built a cage somewhere else and put a lure in it and built a castle right next to the cage and all they had to do was wait and wait and finally the dragon got caught in the cage and got tricked and then the party began in the new castle that they built and the baby dragon was taken care of and they lived happily ever.
