Ready, Set, Run! By Jorel B.

Dorian, a 12-year-old kid, wanted to enter a racing tournament. When he got to school, it was all everyone talked about. In class, most people got in trouble because they kept talking about the grand prize for 1st place, $10,000! After school Dorian went to the gym. He almost fell off the treadmill, he couldn't carry the dumbbell, and he messed up with all the other equipment. He apologizes to the manager and left. At home, Dorian told his dad what happened. His dad said, "Go to sleep and wake up at 5:30 am."

At 5:30 sharp, Doran changed and went downstairs. Dorian ate and went outside, and his dad walked out. "Ready Dorian?" Dorian nodded yes. "Pass this course and we will exercise".

Dorian did the obstacle course, but he got stuck on the last part. He reached for the buzzer, but it was too high. After ten times of trying he came to a forest. He started to leave but it was like he was in a force field. He didn't know what to do. He was all emotions. He turned around and saw a cheetah. "You want to be fast?" asked the cheetah. Dorian nodded his head yes. "Do 100 pushups and come back tomorrow."

Dorian did the 100 push ups and went to sleep.

The next day at recess, his classmates told Dorian to race them. When Dorian got into position, electric sparks surrounded him. When the race started, Dorian was at the finish line in five seconds! At home, he passed the obstacle course in seconds.

On the day of the race it was down to Shredder and Dorian, but Dorian tripped and fell on the 30th lap. Dorian made it to the finish line. Shredder was right behind him, but Dorians foot touched the line! Dorian won! Shredder was poor, so Dorian give him some of the money. Dorian's family went on vacation with the money. They had so much fun doing bumper cars, tight roping, roller coasters, bowling and laser tag. At school Shredder and Dorian were popular. Dorian help a big party for his win.
