This is a story about Evelyn. Who more than anything wants to be a doctor, but can't because she has not finished her medical classes, so she has to take her classes and pay for medical school. You may ask why she wants to be a doctor, well ever since she was a little kid her mom was a doctor and so was her grandmother. She wants to keep the tradition going, anyway back to what I was saying ever since she was young, she loved helping her mother take care of people. She went on her computer and searched up medicalschoo.org but found no classes open but she kept searching every day and finally became a doctor and kept the tradition going.
