Title: The Cursed Island

Once upon a time, there was a hermit that was always at his home and he was frail. He didn't like people going outside because they get loud. He got tired of the loud sound and he had too much stuff in his house. He found an old book with a spell to make everybody stay at their house so he made the potion. The book said in five minutes it will start. So the hermit poured the potion outside. Five minutes later everybody got to their home and stayed there forever and the island got empty. Two weeks later, somebody that was at his school figures out that the hermit cursed the island so he made a potion that the island can be normal. So he made the potion and poured the potion outside but it was hard because of the curse. So he got smart and laid down right next to the front door and poured. The potion trail went outside and everybody went outside. They got happy and they lived happy forever.
