

Naomi B.
Word Count 520

The Pumpkin Patch

The pumpkin patch was known as one of the most haunted places in town, people reported awful screams and crying when passing by, even though no one was there. One day though, residents living near the pumpkin patch reported seeing a little girl in the middle of the pumpkin patch, they said she had a white dress and pin straight hair. Witnesses said that she would only come out at night and that she would go to the exact same spot every time, and they always heard her crying. The mayor soon took notice of these recurring events and sent police officers to see what the matter was. However when they got near her she looked up, stopped crying, and gave a blank stare. The officers tried communicating with her but it was no use, she would always simply stare at them, never answering their questions. When one officer tried to pick her up, she bit him. The blood soon poured out of his arm and that's when she showed her teeth, vampire like. The officers instantly scrambled trying to get something to stop the bleeding, when they finally found a bandage, they patched up his arm and went to look back at the little girl, but she was gone. The officers searched the area in hopes of finding her, but they had no luck. The next day they went to the mayor to report what had happened and how she went missing. The mayor thought that she would be back at the patch that night so he told them to bring a team and go back at night, but when they arrived she wasn't there. They waited almost all night with no sign of her showing up, so at 4:00 a.m they left. The next morning the mayor called a town meeting and everyone in town showed up. "Citizens! Do not be alarmed, however I believe we have a ghost in our town!" said the mayor. The citizens murmured among themselves. One citizen yelled out, "That is a lie, you're just trying to scare us!" The mayor responded, "Please, believe me I'm as scared as you all so we need to do something about this!" Some citizens still didn't believe him, while some burst into tears, however it was mostly the children who were scared. Some yelled out at the mayor. "How can we believe you!" The mayor explained the story and after he finished a look of worry and dread was on the citizens' faces. After the meeting everyone went home feeling worried and dreadful. A few months later the mayor called another meeting, except it wasn't the old mayor it was a new one, and no human showed up to the meeting. The mayor explained that the problem was fixed and that the "ghost" would no longer bother them. However the town was empty, not a trace of any humans in sight. The mayor wasn't talking to anybody because the mayor wasn't there. No one was there. Except a little girl crying in the pumpkin patch, white dress and pin straight hair.