

THE LAST KIDS ON EARTH BY: JOEL D.

One day I was sitting in the living room, and my show Scooby Doo was interrupted by the news. The news broadcaster said, "New rash scientists say they have not seen anything like it, and it is spreading like wildfire. The rash causes weird effects, and the scientists do not know what to do." The next thing I know my dad is pulling me to the hall closet. I didn't know what was happening. All of the sudden I hear glass break, and before we get to the hall closet, I heard someone in the house. I run to the hall closet to find a weapon and left my dad behind. I look behind me and my dad stopped and said, "Run!!!" I did! I ran for my life!

I finally made it to the attic and found my older brother, Luke, and younger sister, Anayah, hiding. I found out that the person or thing that got in my house was a zombie. "We need to find food soon or we are going to starve to death. Maybe we could go find a grocery store or something?" Luke said, "Anayah and I agreed to go." "But when?" I asked. Luke said, "Tomorrow." And after a while we all agreed we would go after a good night's rest.

I did not get any rest that night. Both of my siblings snored, and I think that Anayah was the loudest. Around 11 AM we decided to go and find a grocery store. Just to be sure that there were no zombies we waited until it was very bright outside because we found out that they can't go in the sunlight. If you play enough video games, you will be like a pro at this. We found a Walmart close by. We went to the canned goods section and got everything we could find. There was something moving somewhere close, and Anayah said, "What was that?" Luke and I went to check it out, and thankfully it was just a cat. Luke and I just started laughing. As Luke was wiping a tear away because he was laughing so hard, he said, "We need to find a better place to hide and put our stuff." I said, "Why don't we go and find an airplane because we would be out of reach of the zombies." Luke said, "Where would we go?" Anayah said, "Antarctica, it is too cold for them and they would freeze, and we could go to the mall and get big enough jackets." Luke and I agreed that it was a good idea and I saw an airplane on a nearby roof.

Once we got on the roof, I started to think we need to find a cure for the zombies. So, all I needed was a scientist, but where would we get one? After we got the airplane started, then I looked to the building next to us and saw something on it. The object looked like a person. We got the airplane, and once we got in the air we headed to the object. It was a human, and he was wearing a lab coat. He was a scientist and could help us find a cure! So, we lowered the latter and brought him up. He told us his name was Dr. Big Brain and told us he had found the cure, but he left it in his lab. So, we asked him where his lab was. He said, "I forgot. Oh wait it is in the Pentagon. We could just fly there." Once we got there, we started to look for the cure, and it was on the counter. Then the ground started to shake, and the cure fell off the counter. I dived to catch it and caught it at the last second. I said, "Now that we have it, what next?" Dr. Big Brain said, "Why don't we just make a machine that can send it to the clouds to make it rain on the zombies?" Luke, Anayah, and I had no idea what he was talking about, so we just nodded our heads and went with it. We were running out of time because it was getting dark outside, and I could hear something outside the room. I asked Dr. Big Brain, "Do you have any weapons?" He said, "I have a baseball bat you can use." I said, "It will work." I headed out to the hallway and looked both ways. It was clear, but not for long. Dr. Big Brain came out with a big sling shot, and I said, "I could have done that." So, we came up the stairs to the roof. I said I would shoot it with the help of Dr. Big Brain to help me guide it. We got up to the roof, and I started to pull back the sling shot and let go, and it goes just far enough to get up there and explodes and starts to rain pink. When the zombies started to turn to people we knew that we just saved the world.
