

Evelin R.

A Dog World

The sun was rising and roosters were winging. “Woof -woof! Woof” barked a dog. “Now what?” asked a dog named Coffee. Coffee is a really happy and energetic dog. “A car” answered Rosey. Rosey was a dog who barked at everything. Coffee ran to her friend, Nala. It wasn’t so far because Coffee, Nala, and Rosey lived in the same House. But unlike Coffee, Nala was afraid of many things. That is unless Coffee is with her. Coffee saw a cat that was trying to climb a small tree. “Bark! I’ll get it” said Coffee. Bark! Bark! The scared cat ran off to the porch. Seeing that the cat left, Coffee went back to her dog house. Rosey watched Nala curiously thinking of what her next move would be. But she was in a huge cage, so Rosey couldn’t explore things like Nala or Coffee. A dog started barking. It was Atina, a neighbor dog. Nala was afraid but barked back. What both dogs didn’t know was that they were both afraid of each other. Meanwhile, Coffee was about to eat her meal, but the chicken was staring at her food. “Crazy chicken . . . get away from MY food” Coffee growled. Suddenly, the owner gave Feathers bread. Feathers was the chicken’s name. “Bread!” clucked Feathers excitedly. Feathers was so hungry, she ate every last crum. Just as Coffee finished eating her dog food, Nala came up to her. “Let’s go play” said Nala. “Let’s go!” said Coffee. And so, the two dogs took off playing.