It was March 25th, 2015. Amy was playing outside with her friend Sara. It was the first day of Spring Break. They were playing tag until their mom called them in. When Amy went to bed she felt very sick. The next morning, she woke up with these big painful bruises all over her body. She and her mom immediately rushed to the hospital. While Amy was being checked up by the doctor, her mom was Googling what the bruises on Amy's body meant. She saw it meant she had a brain tumor the size of a baseball. Then the doctor said, "I am sorry ma'am your daughter has a brain tumor." Amy overheard the conversation and started crying, her mom hugged her because they both knew Amy had to do surgery. She couldn't stay in school for 30 days. But the surgery was a success!!! And even though she had to go to the hospital everyday she could play, have fun, and go to school.
