

The END Galaxy

By: Finley G.

END stands for Ecosystems, Nature, and Destruction*

Once upon a time in a faraway land, not even in the Milky Way Galaxy, laid a place called “The END Galaxy”. In the END Galaxy were outer END islands. They all had bridges connecting with each other with a village in between all the bridges. In those villages were animals...but no ordinary animals. They were shades of blue, purple, pink, white, black, and tan. They were very cool and interesting to most people. They were all partly like humans but did not look like humans. Other things that were in the villages were farms and huts to sleep in. On the actual islands were different types of trees, plants, grass, and food. One of the trees was called a Crymson Tree. The bark was purple and blue and the inside was pure red.

I bet you are wondering how all this got here. This is going to sound crazy, but it is true. On Earth there was a very bad tornado. The tornado ripped a tree out of the ground and blew it into space. It started to turn indigo and purple. There was also purple fire and purple particles around it.

The island shook, boom!

The tree had crashed. Then it disintegrated into seeds. Then one of the seeds mixed with a Crymson seed. Then more seeds started mixing with each other, and that took time (a lot of time). Then, one day, a seed created a creature. This is what is now known as the Ender people. Then many more Ender people arose. Still, to this day, there is a huge hole on the main island. That is the story of the END Galaxy.
