

The Plant Spell

By: Daniel H.

Once upon a time, there was a man named Gorgly Ylgrog LVII. He is a strong man and was The wizard's apprentice (Glaveeton's). He specializes in magical herbs. Let me tell you a little about his family history. He is $\frac{1}{8}$ ogre, $\frac{1}{8}$ witch, and $\frac{3}{4}$ human. That's why he can do magic.

Once, Gorgly was out in the mountains pondering, gathering, and sleeping. He loved it most in the mountains. "Eureka!" he cried. "I have it!" Then he was panged with guilt, for he had disrupted the silence of nature. But he was happy for he had figured out the Sormilahnateerantayerap*, the most complex of spells. He ran to his yorweetanick as fast as he could, saying "hello" to all his friends. When he got there, he eagerly explained it to Glaveeton. He got out the translation tiles, put them on the table, and got Glaveeton to listen. "You see, when you unscramble it according to this key, it reads "chunackayoenerantera!" Then he ran to the mountains to practice.

Suddenly he was in a cave. "I AM BONESPITTLE*," said a voice. Gorgly muttered the spell, then thousands of plants were at his command. He found he could control them with his mind. To his surprise, Bonespittle did the same spell! Their plants started fighting. Gorgly noticed a pentaggalonatherra growing in the corner. It was the deadliest plant of all plants. He summoned it to his spell and it emitted some of its deadliest gases. All of Bonespittle's plants died the instant the gas touched them. Suddenly, Bonespittle turned into a sprout, started growing larger and larger, then he touched where the gases were and died. Gorgly was amazed. He had killed Bonespittle, the fabled ruler of the dark lands!

The End
