

The Abandoned Village
Asusesna E.

Hi. My name is Angela, but they call me Angie. We moved to the city not long ago. We moved here because my mom found a job in the USA. It's hard to believe, but next to the city was a very old village. I could see it from my window. I told my mom about the village.

When I told my mother about the village, her eyes widened and she slowly spoke, "Angie, you can't enter the village because. . ."

"Why not?" I asked.

First my mom stood quietly. "I can't tell you," she said.

I madly went to my room. I stared at the village. It looked like it was not just old, but really, really old. The houses looked old, and they looked like they could break at any moment.

6:00 AM the next day. July 16, 2013

I called my best friend, Rosy. I told her about the village. I really wanted to go to the village, so I asked her to go with me.

"NOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOO!!!!" she yelled.

I begged and begged until she finally agreed to go with me. "Yes, I will meet you outside of your house in 10 minutes."

Rosy called for me when she was outside. I was rushing down the stairs when Mom stopped me. "Young lady, where do you think you're going?"

"Ummmmmm. I'm going to the park with Rosy."

"OK, don't be out too late. Take care."

I felt guilty for lying to my mom, but I met Rosy and we went towards the village. Rosy and I stood near the village and stared.

"Let's go inside," I whispered to Rosy and took her hand.

When we got inside the village, Rosy took her hand out of my hand and started walking by herself.

I went to one of the old houses. It was so little not even a pig could live in it. I saw a skeleton. I played with the skeleton's hand. When I let go of the skeleton's hand, he put his hand on my shoulder.

Rosy saw this and got scared. She screamed very loud and ran out of the house. She left me there alone.

I remembered Uncle Joe had taught me how to do a karate punch. I turned towards the skeleton and did a karate punch. Boom! Crack! The skeleton broke into little pieces.

I kept walking. I saw a big house behind some of the trees. I slowly walked towards the house. I stood in front of the huge door of the house for a moment. I opened the door. When I looked behind me, there were a lot of skeletons coming towards me. They even came in the house and chased me around the house. I found an opened door. I rushed through the door, closed and locked it. I was safe because the skeletons could not get in. When I finally relaxed, someone touched my shoulder. I turned around. What I saw made me scream. Is this the end?