

How Billy-Bob, Jr. Got Himself an Accidental Trip to the Moon

By: Jayden T. and Jase S.

One day, Billy Bob, Jr., who was four years old, was reading his book about astronomy when he realized that he wanted to become an astronomer. Then he realized he could reach a higher goal; he wanted to become an astronaut. He asked his mom to bring up google on the computer. His mom asked why, but he replied with, "I would like to learn how to type." His mom found google and Billy-Bob, Jr. got to work finding how to become an astronaut. He found that you need to go to college, get a degree in engineering, go to NASA (national aeronautics and space administration), test a spacesuit in a giant pool, and blast off to the moon. He told his fourteen-year-old brother, Kegan, that he wanted to be an astronaut, and Kegan said, "that will take you three years in college, plus elementary, middle, high, and pre school." Billy felt so defeated by this news that he went to his room and started making his own spacesuit out of cardboard with his dogs, Lucy and Jury. His parents came in and comforted him with his new favorite meal, a MRE (meal ready to eat) for astronauts that his dad got for him from NASA. He ate the tortellini, while his brother ate the chicken spaghetti. They had a wonderful time eating the MREs and drinking the "chocolate beverage" from the bag. Billy was happy but wanted more, he wanted to go to the moon. When he woke up the next day, he was bursting with excitement as he told his friends about his plan to go to the moon. They thought he was crazy, but in the next few years, he trained to go there. When he turned 7, he had been sneaking into college for 3 years to get a degree in engineering. He also snuck into NASA's programs to learn about space. He was so ready to go, he couldn't help it. He told his mom that he was going to go play with his friends (which was what he had been doing for those 3 years). He got a taxi (he taxied?), snuck into the astronomer's bag, and flew to the moon. The crew saw him when they got to the ISS (international space station). Chris asked Billy what he could do, and he said he had a degree in engineering. Alex was impressed and asked him what to do if some things happened. He answered correctly. Chris let him go to the moon, because he has been wanting to do this forever. When they got to the moon, he was extraordinarily joyful. When he went home, the news was everywhere. His mom was so proud that they went to eat the most expensive ice cream dinner they could find. They all went home and enjoyed watching the news about himself.

The End :)