

Alexa R.

Athletic Joe

Joe Anderson loves to play football. He dreams of being the most famous player of the NFL (National Football League). His idol was Odell Beckham Jr.! He begged his mom to put him on a football team every year.

It was Joe's last year at high school and wanted to earn a scholarship for football in college. So Joe was trying to do his best to earn the scholarship, but failed to earn the scholarship. Joe wasn't very joyful at that moment and said "I can't put 'the end' to this."

So Joe's solution was to practice more football and be better than he already is. On May the football coach, Coach Martinez, announced there will be another scholarship for football. Joe knew this was his chance, because he trained for this. He couldn't wait to go back to the football field and play with his teammates.

It was Wednesday and Joe was practicing with his team. Coach Martinez came in to start practice, but first he announced and said "Whoever does the best plays will get the scholarship for football for college.” Joe was so excited he couldn’t believe what he just heard. It was Friday and it was the last game Joe will have with his high school football team.

The game had just started, and Joe was already doing all types of moves. He was so concentrated on doing teamwork and the best plays. Joe’s team ended up winning 42-14. After the game Joe’s team got medals and trophies, and Coach Martinez announced who will get the scholarship and he said “Joe Anderson!”

Joe was so delighted he couldn’t even believe it. When he finished college he went into the NFL, and went with the New York Giants. Joe was getting attention like Odell did and became known over the world, and Joe became famous.