My Kaylee D and Mia F

In 1987 a deadly chemical called nitrogen acid...it was 1987 Tuesday, when I just started a new day at work as a teacher I had to sub for an 8th grade class at Garcia middle school, the teacher didn't come so I had to sub for the class and I didn't know we had a field trip! The teachers got all of the eighth graders in the bus and ready to go we were going to a chemical research lab downtown, I didn't know that so I was actually excited! When we were all there was so many acids and chemicals. It looked so cool and oh in a science lab there of course is a periodic table to see what the chemical was. I was always curious what type of chemical nitrogen acid is, so we got the tour and then I asked "What type of chemical is Nitrogen acid is?" The tour guide person stared at me with shocked and said "you may have asked the professors office I knocked" he said come in, so I went in. he said "good morning how may I help you" told him my question and he got all about how nitrogen is dangerous and it's a non-metal and the atomic number was 7 in the periodic table and the mass was 14.007 and that the element symbol was [N] I mean I knew all that stuff he wanted to be sure it was dangerous. So he took me to go see it and it was a big tub filled with it ,one second later the, emergency alarm went off and the announcement was an emergency alert chemical reactions room 502. The professor came to the lab immediately and ran down the hall while I was strapped in room 601 where I was stuck, only key cards can get you in or out I was terrified so I started banging on the door as loud as I can and that when I heard it an explosion. The sealing came off and drop to the nitrogen acid since of that the nitrogen started a chemical reaction so I was terrified I guess since 80% of the planet is nitrogen gas the chemical wants to have a much more space to spread its gas I thought and when I heard all the rumbling noises I ran to the door, but it was blocked off from the reactions. I didn't know what to do so all I did was try to stay calm. But that didn't work second later a boulder came down the sealing and almost squash me but I was ok. I didn't realized that I there war a rock behind me so I trip and fell in the nitrogen acid...after that I realized I was in the hospital and I've been in a coma for 9 months I was devastated I asked the doctor and he said we will do some test on you to see if I was fine to go and later I was, so I ran out side and something strange happen when I got home I was way younger and prettier than before. I realized something happen when I was in the coma so I ran to my friends house and that's when it happen I ran so fast like flash but way quicker and I could fly, I had super strength and everything so I decided if I can use my power to help save people I could become a superhero. So that's my story.
