The good scary house

One upon a time there was this huge beautiful big building and inside that huge building, there was a whole family in there. And the address was Salt walk, and the number of the house was 2216. Twelve years later the family heard a sound in the kitchen and they were scared. The father went there to see what was making that noise, and he saw something like a ghost running away. Then the father went running to tell the others he told the others and they were the scariest persons ever. They tried to call the hotel while they were picking their things. When all of them were ready the little boy was stuck in his room, and he could not go out, and he forgot his phone at school so he could not call any of his family members. He was so scared that he jumped over the window, and he saw his family leaving he shouted “wait”, and his mom heard it and stopped the taxi. She ran so much that she even got red. She hugged him and said: “how could I forget you?” The boy said: “mysteries always happen.” Everyone got happy because the boy was back, and his mom told him to run because the ghosts were still there. So he ran back to the taxi and went as fast as he could. They got to the hotel where they felt because it was a safer place. They walked through the stairs, got to their room, organized their things and then they watched TV. After they had watched one single movie, they went down to have dinner. They just had some bread and milk, as they weren't hungry. They kept thinking about what was going to happen to their house. Their mom thought that the house was going to get fire. The youngest kid did not understand what was going on. The mom decided that next week they were going to call the ghost busters to see if there were real ghosts in the house and then they could come back to their beautiful and sweet home. The little boy told his mom that some more ghosts could go there, and the mom said: “they won’t come back because the ghost busters are going to spray something everywhere in the house that is going to keep the ghosts away.” “What are they spraying at our house?” asked the boy. “I don’t know, but they told me the spray was made 234 years ago.” answered the mom. “Can you ask them what is in the spray? Because we could do the spray by ourselves, it would be fun!” insisted the boy. “They don’t tell us because there is a special ingredient” replied his mom. Thirty years later the little boy was now 35 years old and stayed at the old house. He was alone and worried because the spray for ghosts had ended. He was trying to find his older brother, but he could not find him. So he decided to go to the park, which was the last time he saw his brother. He saw a man that looked like his brother, and for his surprise, he was indeed his brother. He could not believe it. They hugged, and the younger brother said: “Can you help me reforming the house? It looks horrible! Can you? Can you? Can you?” The older brother said: “O.K.”. Then the brothers went to the scary house. The big brother did everything that the house needed to look better, and as they were digging a spot to plant a flower they found something. It was a photo of the ghosts that they saw 35 years ago, taken by the ghost busters. The big brother said: “Those were not ghosts, just curtains moving with the wind. The ghost busters should have told them that there were no ghosts at the house. And everything was normal then.....
