

Macy & Max

By Lauren B.

One day in Austin, Texas, at a pet store named Petco, there were 2 mice that were gray and tiny. Their names were Max and Macy.

They lived together in a tiny gray cage with iron bars where it was peaceful. But one day, a girl name Laura barged in through the glass doors of the pet store to buy a pet mouse. So, the petstore keeper struggled to retrieve Macy out of the cage. He placed him in a jar and gave it to the impatient girl.

After Laura had raced through the sunny glass doors, Max started to panic. He started digging under the cage but all he could find was 20 year old newspapers. All of a sudden a girl named Lori, Laura's sister, dashed through the doors of Petco demanding a gray tiny mouse. Suddenly, Max felt rough hands clutch his tail, yank him out of the cage and chunk him in to the glass jar.

"Here you go", the man uttered handing it to the 9 year old girl. As Lori raced back out through the door, Max pushed and pushed the opening of the jar but it wouldn't budge. All he could hear was the pounding of his heart racing out of his chest. When he felt the girl stop, he looked at his surroundings and saw a terrifying cat door.

Then, Lori grabbed the handle, yanked, and stepped in to the brick house. When in the house, Max saw a black haired cat with glowing green eyes that jumped out of nowhere. Max gasped as the black cat flashed his white shiny teeth at him.

When Max heard a thump, he felt like running away until he saw Macy in another cage.

"I love my new home" he squeaked as Lori and Laura placed Max and Macy in to a gold cage. When he could smell the fresh juicy food he remembered the moment he got picked up, heading for a new life. Happily he thought what his new life would be like in his new comfortable, warm, brick home.