

2B2 the Reading Alien

By Iris M.

There once was a town named Sugarland, where an eight-year-old girl named Molly lived.

Her favorite thing to do was read science fiction books about chemicals, planets and aliens.

She also enjoyed riding her bike to the library where she could spend hours reading.

One day on her way to the library she saw a space ship landing in the park right next to the library.

Molly was curious and approached the space ship, a small green blob took shape of a short green alien with long arms and big cute eyes. The alien's name was 2B2. 2B2 asked "Where is the library?", because he liked to read. Molly was shaking and pointed to the library, when 2B2 said "Thank you!", she realized he wasn't scary at all and was very friendly and liked to read like she did.

Molly followed 2B2 into the library and she asked "What kind of books are you looking for?". He replied "I'm looking for books about Planet Earth, that is why I came here for".

She knew exactly where to find them and got the books she thought he might like. 2B2 also had some books with him about his Planet Verde.

Molly was very excited because she had never heard about that planet and she liked to read and learn about other planets.

They spent hours sharing each other's books.

Molly and 2B2 were so interested in learning about each other's lives that time flew by and they both realized it was time to go home for supper.

They said "Good bye" to each other and Molly got on her bike and 2B2 on his space ship and both went home to their families happy they had made a new friend.
