

Nicki and Cash

Nicki was walking from dance class one day when a boy suddenly joined her. She was surprised to see him and also scared because she had never seen him before. As she arrived at the gate of her house, she fainted because she was so tired from dancing.

When she woke up she was in hospital room 525. All she thought about was the boy she met earlier. She remembered his brown eyes and his red t-shirt and his black shoes. She heard a “knock, knock, knock” at the door, and he was there. He said, “Hi, my name is Cash. Do you remember me?” He gave her red roses.

The next day, she got out of the hospital. She looked at the red roses and saw his phone number and address and walked to his house. When she got there, there was a car with her name on it! Cash was sitting in the car and asked her, “Do you want to go for a ride to Olive Garden with me?”

“Yes, but I have some errands to do first. I have got to go shopping at the mall for a red dress, red shoes, red purse, black earrings and makeup.”

“Oh, wow! You are fancy.”

After she was done buying her stuff, Nicki called Cash and told him she was ready to go.

When she got there, she wanted to order first. She said, “I’ll take a salad, breadsticks, a Sprite, and manicotti.”

He said, “I will just take Cheeseits... Just kidding, I will take the spaghetti and meatballs, with yellow lemonade, lemon and ice.”

After they got done, she drove him back home, and she went home and bought a new watch for him with 15 real diamonds. Nicki called Cash and surprised him. She said, “I bought you a watch with 15 real diamonds on it.” “Wow, expensive! Do you want to go to the movies?” Nicki said, “I would love to!” And Cash said, “I know the perfect romance movie, Romeo and Juliet. I got us some popcorn from target and also some Sprite.” They cried at the end of the movie. Cash said, “I hope we have a happier romance. We are like popcorn and butter.”

The next morning, Nicki and Cash were headed on a picnic. She was wearing green shorts with a white t-shirt and pink tennis shoes. She brought a red and white picnic cloth and a picnic hamper filled with grapes, fried chicken, carrots, yogurt, cookies, and Sprite. “I’ve loved you since you were in room 525,” said Cash. “Will you marry me?”

Nicki said, "Yes! If I had a wedding, I would have a white dress, with silk layers at the end and one shoulder bow. That's my wedding dress."

Cash said, "I would wear a white tuxedo with a red bow tie. Let's get the clothes tomorrow and get married next weekend!" And so they did. And they lived happily ever after.
