

Annoying Ducks!

By: Irvin W.

Quack! The next thing I knew was there was a duck stealing my picnic as I was spreading peanut butter across my bread.

This story is about a boy named Jack who wants a picnic more than anything but can't because a duck always steals it.

"Ah ha!" I've thought of a way to keep the ducks away! I can set up mouse traps around my picnic! And so he did, but when he was eating a Peanut Butter & Jelly sandwich, suddenly a duck came out of nowhere jumped the mouse traps and stole his picnic then ran away! "Uhg!"

Jack stomped his foot and stepped on a mouse trap! "OWWWWWWCH," screamed Jack, "DDDDDDDDUUUUUCCCCKKKKKSSSSSS!!!!!!!!!!!!!"

Just then Jack saw a perfect way to keep ducks away, a better way.

So, the next day Jack put his furry creature on guard duty and sat down to eat. INSTANTLY DUCKS CAME AND STOLE HIS PICNIC! But he saw that the cat had caught a duck and it had a crown! Jack's brain went through 25 thousand thoughts, most of them being about a ransom.

Jack put the duck on ransom, left a note in a picnic, and it said:

And last night the ducks had a meeting and said...YES! So in the morning, Jack made another picnic. The ducks came and took the king duck and left! Jack had peaceful picnics for as long as he lived!
