

Sam and the Bully

By Eric R.

There is a boy named Sam, and he was adopted by a very rich woman. When Sam went to school, he had no friends. Other children called him a nerd. When Sam heard the mean comments from the other children, he felt very bad about his self. One day, the teacher gave the STARR results, and when Sam heard that he passed, he was extremely excited. When other children heard that Sam passed other nerds said, "Good job, Sam!" When Sam heard the nice comments from the other nerds, he felt really good about himself. He actually started to smile from ear to ear. Sam then began to make new friends.

The very next day at school, Sam was at his locker getting stuff out of this locker for class he overheard other children talking that he was going to become the president of his class. All of the other children were happy to hear that Sam was going to become the president of the class except for a boy named Billy. Billy was very mad that he did not win the votes. Billy was a classmate of Sam's that was always mean, picking on other children, and taking other children's lunch money. When Billy saw Sam in the hallway, Billy walked over to Sam with anger and slammed his locker shut with a big "BOOM". Billy then looked at Sam with an ugly frown and said, "You should not have won being president of our class, I should have because I am a better student than you are!" Then, Billy raised his hand up balled into a fist and tried to hit Sam in the face. Luckily, the principal Mr. Sprinkle was walking in the hallway and was able to stop Billy from hitting Sam.

Mr. Sprinkle was a very nice guy to Sam, and loved all his students, especially Sam. Mr. Sprinkle stopped Billy in the hallway and sent him straight to the office. When Billy said "I will get my revenge," he gave Sam a nasty look. On the way home from school, Sam was looking around and noticed that Billy was following him home from a distance. When Sam made it to school, he looked around, and Billy once again was nowhere to be seen. Sam noticed in the nurse's office, Billy was in the office being picked up by his mom. Sam was happy that Billy was sick, for this meant that Billy would not be at school for a couple of days or maybe even weeks. Billy came back after the weekend break and was not watching Sam or following Sam home anymore. Billy saw Sam looking at him, and held his head down. Sam thought it was weird that Billy was not being mean to him and picking on him. Billy then said, "Stop looking at me." Billy did not use his fist that time. Billy did not want Sam to do that again because it was bothering him and made him mad. Billy then went home and talked to his mother.

The next day Billy came to school and played a prank on Sam in front of the whole entire school. This prank was very embarrassing, Sam had to go home. While Sam was at home Sam cried and talked to his mother. Sam's mother said to Sam, "You are a very smart and intelligent young boy, do not let Billy bother you anymore.” The next day, Sam sat down and talked to Billy. Sam told Billy how much that prank hurt his feelings. Billy then said, “All I wanted to do was be your friend, and be president of the class.” Sam then said, “If you wanted to be my friend and president, all you had to do was tell me.” Sam continued, “Instead you chose to be a bully and you could’ve been my friend.” Billy never thought about being a friend and not a bully. So after school, Billy and Sam became the best of friends. Billy even became vice president of the class. They went to movies and no more pranks were ever played. The end.
