By: Serenity M,

“MARY!! Put that book down and go to bed!”, mom yelled from the living room. “Mom can I just finish this last chapter please?” Mary begged her mom, “No, you know you don’t like to get up early in the morning” her mother replied “ok, good night mom”. Mary said as she slowly walked down the hallway, “Good night Mary”, mom said back softly. When Mary got to her room she turned off her light. As she started to fall asleep she wished that she would become the most wonderful and amazing author one day. As her eyes got tighter and tighter she kept that wish in mind. The next day she wondered if she become the most wonderful and amazing author, ON THE EARTH! As she was eating breakfast she asked her mom, “Do you think I would become an amazing author one day”, her mom said, “It depends on YOU if you become the most wonderful writer on earth.” Mary was not looking forward for that answer, she was hoping she would say yes. Then Mary asked, “what do you really mean that,” then her mom said, “Do you think birds can fly.” Mary said, “yes,” “then I think you can become the most wonderful writer on earth”. Mary kept her mom’s words in her heart. After breakfast, she went into her room and got a piece of paper and started writing. But then she stopped herself because, she didn’t know what to write. Mary thought that was the hardest part. So Mary sat there and sat there and sat there until something came to her mind, she said to herself, “What about I makeup a story”, Mary thought that was a great idea! So she got another piece of paper and started writing. After she was done she wrote about 7 long chapters, she said to herself, “That wasn’t so bad”. Then her mom opened her door and told her it was almost time for dinner, Mary said, "Dinner? I'm been writing that long", then her mom said "what have you been writing", as she was taking the papers off her desk. Her mom read about two chapters then stopped and said "Mary, this story is amazing, this is wonderful" really let me see", Mary said surprised. She read some of the pages and they were pretty amazing. Then her mom got this great idea, she said, "how about we take this to a famous author and see what she does and thinks about it," she said exciting. Mary thought that was a great idea. So they got dressed and went to meet the author. When they made it to the great author and she read the whole thing and thought it was amazing. She wanted that little girl to become the next great, amazing author. So she had put it on her website and all her followers saw it and gave comments, one said that little girl story was magnificent and should be put all over the world. The famous author was so impressed that a little girl had wrote that story. Then Mary said "do you know what my wish wanted to be" the famous author said "what was that?", Mary said proudly, "To become an amazing author just like you?"
