

Edwin O.

Once there was a little girl who her parents went out and she was left with a babysitter. The man had a hoodie, so you could not see his face. Later the little girl asked the hooded man to play he said, "NO". More later the man took the hoodie off and it was a stranger, he taped her mouth she screamed for help. Her grandmother heard and called her parents. They were going on their way. When they got there the man was waiting for them. More people called the police, but it was too late. They were dead.

The end!