I am writing about a girl named Miranda. She loves football. She plays it every day, and it is like her life to her. She plays with her brother and she thinks it is so fun.

When she was going to try out for a football team. The boys did not like her so she went home so sad.

Her mom saw her sad, and Miranda walked to her room, and her mom went to and, said “what's wrong with you?” “All of the boys don't like me.”

“It's ok I bet they will want you.” “Bet know they don't.” The next day the boys had a game and, Miranda went to it, and they LOST so the coach said we need a girl so all the boys said “let's have the girl who tried out” , everyone said “ok”.

Miranda said “yes” so she was on the team and she was such a good player on the team and the boys were so happy to have her.

They had a game and who ever won the game, they will get a trophy and they were playing and Miranda was the one making the touchdowns. So Miranda's team won.
