A Thanksgiving Story

Jake went to his grandma's house for the weekend. While his grandma cooks, Jake says he's not hungry. Jake goes to sleep.

Then a guardian came and took Jake back to the past. The guardian showed Jake a homeless boy who couldn't celebrate Thanksgiving.

Then Jake's parents gave him shoes. Jake went outside and showed his friends his new shoes.

They laughed.

They said those are old shoes.

Jake was sad. Jake threw his shoes in the lake. Then the guardian took Jake to another past. The guardian showed Jake the homeless boy as an adult along with his family. It was Thanksgiving.

Jake saw them eating together. The guardian then told Jake that Thanksgiving is not just about food, but family. The guardian then took Jake back to his grandma's house.

Jake woke up and told his family about his adventure with the guardian. They agreed that Thanksgiving is not about food, but family.
