

The secret of the cave

Once upon a time there was an explorer named Mr. Derien Serge. He was exploring a remote part of the Amazon Jungle with his trusty assistant Mr. Wallas when he came upon a peculiar sight. It was a cave with a wide opening and very jagged rocks at the front. There seemed to be a faint glow coming from inside so the explorers went in. The light in the cave was faint so they turned on their flashlights and entered the cave. They were walking when suddenly a flying rock almost decapitated Mr. Wallas. The explorers were momentarily shocked and they decided to get out of there. But when they turned around there was a solid wall of rocks blocking the exit. They were frightened and decided to continue deeper in to the cave. The glow was getting stronger and they new they had to be close. They soon reached a huge cavern and were amazed to find a dimond the size of a school bus. There was a hole in one of the cavern walls and they decided to come back with better equipment some time in the future. AS they left the cave they reflected on the great adventure they had.
